On 30 May 1950 the Chinese Communist Board of Supply issued a secret instruction to the Economics and Reconstruction Commission in Canton to undertake purchases of metals such as copper, etc., in South China, to send all tungsten produced in Kiangsi and Kwangtung to the north and to buy gasoline and heavy oils (believed to be lubricating, diesel and engine oils) in Hong Kong and Macao. The commission has assumed control of tung oil (wood oil) and has banned its export.
